Aqua Publica Europea

In recent years, the privatization of water management and the negative results that have often followed, have been the cause of significant concern in Spain. Consequently, many cities have decided to remunicipalise their water services, the result of which have been largely positive.

The Madrid City Council (Ayuntamiento de Madrid), together with the civil society organisation Red Agua Publica, is organising a meeting of Spanish and other European cities for public water management. The purpose of this meeting is to bring together social, environmental, political and trade union organizations who promote public, nonprofit, transparent and participative water management.

For more information, please consult the webpage of the Ayuntamiento de Madrid (Madrid city council).

You can register until the 28th of October by sending an email to: ciudadesaguapublica@madrid.es

In the email, please include the following information: first and last name, organisation, telephone number and address.
